

BROOKLYN NEWS.

NEW JERSEY.

HANDCUFFED AND BEATEN. MRS. GARRY WANTS MONEY.

63 MIDWIVES ARE ACCUSED.

Peddler Brown Has an Exciting Time in a Brooklyn Saloon.

One Assailant Sent to Jail and the Other Held.

Justice Walsh, in the Butler Street Court, Brooklyn, this morning sentenced William Davison, aged thirty, insurance agent, of 481 Fifth avenue, to ten days in jail, and held James O'Mara, aged nineteen, of 481 Fifth avenue, charged with assault by Capo Brown, a peddler of 19 Chrystie street, New York.

When Brown appeared in court this morning he was excited, and, waving his hands about in the air, declared that the prisoners should be sent to jail for life.

He showed the Judge his wrists where the two men had clapped handcuffs on him, and then pointing to an abrasion of his neck said it was where they had beaten him.

Brown said that last night he entered Everett's saloon, 485 Fifth avenue, to sell some goods.

O'Mara, who was seated on him as the peddler Brown snapped a pair of handcuffs on his wrists.

The peddler broke away from the two men and ran to the nearest station-house.

Brown had to wait an hour before O'Mara came in, when the handcuffs were removed. O'Mara had the key.

When arraigned before the Judge both men pleaded guilty, and O'Mara admitted he had been arrested before on a similar charge.

The men denied that they handcuffed the peddler in order to rob him, but said it was all done for a joke.

RESTAURANT SPIRITUALISM.

Table-Tipping Which Startled the Nerves of Inspector Mackellar.

Chief Inspector Mackellar, of Brooklyn, is not superstitious as a rule, but his nerves were considerably shaken yesterday shortly after he had taken a seat at a table in a restaurant close to the City Hall, on Fulton street.

Seated opposite the Inspector at another table and facing him was a benevolent-looking old lady, just finishing her noonday repast. After the Inspector had given the pretty, red-haired waitress his order he was somewhat startled to hear a rumbling noise, which grew louder, apparently emanating from the table at which the benevolent-looking old lady was seated.

The noise did not disturb her in the least, as she placidly went on with her meal.

It did distract the Inspector, though, and particularly as the table was soon to move up and down without any apparent cause. The Inspector blushed and then looked sheepish.

It was evident that a spiritualistic séance was going on right under his eyes, and the medium was the benevolent old lady.

The rumbling noise continued, and occasionally the table would give a sort of spasmodic hop, skip and a jump, to all of which the old lady was apparently oblivious.

By this time everyone in the restaurant was interested in the strange performance. Even the porter and half-a-dozen waiters paused in the centre of the restaurant, with their arms full of silverware, and watched the singular spectacle.

At length the old lady concluded her repast, and after carefully folding her napkin and spectacles, calmly walked to the cashier's desk and settled her bill.

The rumbling noise had not ceased when she left the table, and the spectator, leaning over his own table, made a closer examination. Then he sprang up in his chair looking more sheepish than before.

COALITION WITH SHOVELS.

Lies and Juan Discussed Working Ability of Races.

Joseph Lies, a German, of 103 Walworth street, and Joseph Juan, an Italian, of 155 South Fourth street, were held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, today on complaint of Mrs. Mary W. Parker, who said he had been working before a second marriage.

Mrs. Parker said that he had given his wife, Mrs. Parker, to the Lee Avenue Court to be divided between his children, and Parker told the court that the action had been brought by the mother to annoy her son.

Mrs. Parker had a daughter, Mary, who is a teacher in the public schools, aged 27.

Mrs. Parker said that Mrs. Garry has brought the matter before the Board of Education, and he promises, she says, to make an investigation.

SCUDDERS GO TO COURT.

Quarrel Over the Estate of the Late Townsend Scudder.

Justice Bartlett, in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, today heard a motion for a bill of particulars in an action in the estate of Mrs. Sarah Scudder Starkweather, widow of Townsend Scudder, who left her sole executrix of an estate valued at $25,000.

Mrs. Starkweather, after her second marriage, made two trusts to her sons, P. H. Scudder and H. C. Starkweather. The interest was to be collected and paid to her. At her death the estate was to be divided between her children, and Parker told the court that the action had been brought by the mother to annoy her son.

James Willis, now in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, on a charge of attempted robbery, may have to stand trial for bigamy as well. He tried to steal a watch from John O'Brien in Williamsburg, and when arraigned in the Lee Avenue Court pleaded desperation because of lack of work and a desire to marry again.

A man of charitable inclined people heard of the case and sent money for Willis to Justice Goetting. The latter expected him to call on him. Justice Goetting was not in court today, his place being taken by Justice David, who directed the man to go to the office of the Commissioner of Charities.

"Of course you'll hang me. I expect it, and shall be disappointed if you don't. But I want it understood right now that I have rights,"

P. Huntington says that the report from San Francisco that the Southern Pacific is to build a railroad from the California coast to the Gulf of California is probably true.

The Southern Pacific is to be built entirely by Chinese labor.
